The Education Related Deferment Form starts on page two of this document

What does it mean to “consolidate your loans”? To put it simply, it takes 10-20 years of loan payments from multiple lenders and stretches them out to 30 years. This process shrinks your monthly payment and also gives you one monthly bill to pay, instead of mailing out multiple checks.

StudentLoanConsolidator.com provides tutorials and advice to walk you through the loan consolidation process. We offer consolidation options for the following types of loans:

- Federal Student Loan Consolidation - Consolidate your Stafford or Parent PLUS loans into one, lower monthly payment
- Private Student Loan Consolidation - Have multiple private student loan payments? Combine them into one!
- Graduate Loan Consolidation - Just finished graduate school but have loan payments that are out of control? Think consolidation!

Along with the option to consolidate your student loans, StudentLoanConsolidator.com also offers the following resources:

Loan Consolidation Interest Rates – Find out what the current interest rates would be if you consolidate.

Loan Consolidation Savings Calculator – Would you like to know how much your monthly payments will be after you consolidate?

Student Loan Consolidation Blog – Keep up with the latest news and legislation in loan consolidation.
